ChiHaku

Summary

It's been years and Chihiro still thinks that she's forgetting something important.

It's been three months since school started and Chihiro still can't forget the feeling that there's something she's missing.

"Chi-chan," someone called her out of her trance and into the real world, looking at the brunette beside her.

"Have you seen the new student, yet?"

Shaking her head, Chihiro said, "No."

"Take your seats!" their homeroom teacher yelled as the door opened. Behind him, a beautiful guy, with features she knew from her heart, followed.

Standing from her chair in disbelief, the memories from her time in Yubaba's care came rushing back to her.

"Haku," she whispered under her breath.
